END OF RANGE BOUND MOVEMENT NIFTY HEADING FOR A BREAKOUT THIS MONTH

SHUBHA
JAVARIA

As we rightly predicted, February was a month of mixed sentiments and there was no conclusive direction for the markets. Geopolitical tensions between India and Pakistan took center stage after the Pulwama attack on CRPF soldiers, where the nation mourned the loss of 40 soldiers. With tensions between India and Pakistan on the rise, there was a general sense of insecurity and weak market sentiments seemed to take over.

The Indian Air Force's "pre-emptive strike" on February 26 brought about fears of further geopolitical tension between the two countries. Amidst fears of a trade war and as matters escalated, market participants were in a panic and took a cautious stance leading to a drop in levels.

Astro Outlook For The Month - March 2019

From the volatile journey witnessed by the markets in the month of October, Nifty entered into a range specific movement from November onwards. Since then, Nifty has not able to cross its range on either side. The astro charts for March 2019 shows a strong indication that Nifty will manage to break its range and inch towards an upward side.

The geopolitical tension and performance pressure, which put the market in a range-bound movement, will gradually see some easing out, helping market participants to overcome the negative sentiment.

March will see the return of foreign investments and will also witness a general sense of stability. In the second week of March, the market will show some turnaround and will start its journey towards an upward movement. This will be a crucial development that will help pull Nifty towards the previous high.

ASTRO OUTLOOK FOR THE MONTH - MARCH 2019

There may be certain days that will see an extremely volatile market. The highest volatility will be in the first trading week of the month after which, Nifty will resume an upward journey.

We will keep you updated regarding the specific days of market volatility in our weekly report. Stay tuned!

Astro Outlook For The Month – March 2019

Expiry

March 28, 2019, the market will begin on a bullish note and will have a good gap up opening. However, there are strong indications that the market will witness volatility and during the course of the day, the market will shed gains and subsequently will then give recovery.
