Our Monthly outlook for October 2019, clearly predicted that the market will go through two different phases in October. In the first phase, we forecasted rangebound trading, and exactly as predicted the levels went from the range of 11550 to a critical support range of 11112 and touched the support zone.

For the second phase, we predicted that the market will most probably witness an uptrend and rightly so, from October 17th the market witnessed an uptrend, where it crossed 11550 on the first day of the second phase, once again proving beyond doubt that our predictions for Market trends offer the highest level of accuracy and precision.

In the first week, around November 5 -8, Nifty will create top for the rally that commenced in the last two weeks of October.

From the 8th of November onwards, markets will enter into a consolidation phase. This month will witness the market consolidate and rest.

There will be a unique pattern for the trading days where Nifty will rise as at the end of the day market participants will be interested in profit bookings. This inturn will keep it range bound and in a consolidation phase till the end of this month.

There will most likely not be very substantial movement in Nifty, but certain sectors will outperform. Although their participation will not impact the range of Nifty after 8 November.

TIME THEORY - ASTRO OUTLOOK NOVEMBER - 2019

We are extremely positive about the Auto Sector, strong stocks will outperform in the month of November which are heavily beaten after the second week.

IT sector will also perform well as the currency may further deplete due to the increase in the price levels of Crude, which may once again exert pressure on the health of the Indian economy.

Good stocks from Nifty Reality will outperform in this month.

The Insurance sector will create the top in this month, as this was the leader and outperformed the market in the previous year.
