BULLS TAKE A BREAK NIFTY TO TRADE RANGE BOUND

The month of August saw Nifty making and breaking new record highs. The Bulls were roaring and as we accurately predicted in our Monthly Outlook for August and our Weekly Reports, the second half of the month witnessed an extremely bullish trend with Nifty crossing one milestone after another and surpassing the 11,700 mark. Our weekly predictions were precise and accurate with date wise predictions accurately identifying the market trends; be it the sluggish trend on August 21st or the bullish trends during key dates in the weeks of August.

The month of September will bring about an end to the strong bullish cycle that the market experienced in recent weeks. The Bulls and the Bears will give in and the market will enter into a neutral monthly cycle with Nifty going through day wise, range bound movements.

Although, there will be no reason for panic or anxiety in the market, there is nothing positive too on the charts for Nifty. For the month of September 2018, we advise our subscribers to maintain a cautious stance and monitor Nifty closely to keep booking profits on the basis of daily movements.

Our charts indicate that this is a month for traders. We strongly recommend a change in the trading strategy for Nifty this month. Rather than holding, it will be advantageous to book profits as there will be multiple opportunities to benefit from range bound trading this month.

Nifty to trade range bound- Buy at dips, sale at high

Nifty

The charts indicate a neutral trend for Nifty in this month. Market will witness the bulls and the bears taking up equal days. However, there are signs that the bullish and bearish trends will end with market witnessing nominal gains in this month.

Additionally, the market may experience some range bound run or go through a period of sluggish movement, however, stocks will witness a good trend.

As indicated, there will be very few bullish days in Nifty, which most likely will be in the second week of September, the remaining days will be average trading days.

Midcaps

We are bullish for Midcaps. Good stocks will give good returns hence, it is advisable to take advantage of the opportunity and shift focus towards stocks rather than concentrate on Nifty.

Bank Nifty

This month will see Bank Nifty gaining a strong foothold and will create the platform for the next bull run that is expected in Bank Nifty.

Important Dates in September

September 12 - Key Bullish Day

Expert Recommendations

We advise our subscribers to book profits for long positions (we had recommended taking long positions in Nifty in our Monthly Outlook for August) in the date range of September 03 – 05, 2018.

We would also like to advise our subscribers to focus on daily trading for Nifty and take positions based on our recommendations in the weekly reports that we publish.
